What the Grand Trunk Pacific Bought

Inside Story of the Big Deal Which Makes Edmonton the Commercial Metropolis of the Great West

NEGOTIATIONS CARRIED QUIETLY TO CONSUMMATION

How Negotiations Carried Out by Successive Mayors and City Councils Have Terminated in a Deal Which Guarantees the City's Future Beyond all Paradvantage

The announcement in the Bulletin yesterday that the deal had been closed for the property wanted by the Grand Trunk Pacific for yards, shops and terminals in Edmonton, came as welcome news to the citizens and property holders of the Capital city. No more momentous railroad announcement, so far as this town is concerned, has been made, and none could have more far-reaching effects. It brings to a close a long chapter in the city's making. That these have been anxious moments for the city fathers and guiding spirits of the industrial and municipal machinery of this town, goes without saying. Times there have been when those in the know would only shake their heads and look sad—the chances seemed so slim; then there were days when things looked rosy and the sunlight on the faces of the men behind seemed to indicate a story without words entitled the "G. T. P. is ours."

It is a long, long story and no one would attempt at this late date to rehearse all the negotiations that have been undertaken between the city and the company, of the reams and reams of correspondence carried on through two successive civic administrations, of the tact and firmness which prompted members of the council, of the board of trade and other influential local men to sit tight and stand pat for

Edmonton all the time. It is a remarkable tribute to the public spiritedness of the men in whose care these negotiations were intrusted that no one yet has ever come forward to claim honor for services rendered, but that each in his own way carried out his part quietly and without ostentation through months when a slip or an ill-advised word might have changed the city's history.

Of the earlier negotiations between the Grand Trunk Pacific and the city, the most is already known and much of it is ancient history. All the citizens who were here at the time are familiar with the story of the first agreement, made in Chicago, two years ago, between Mayor Short and J. A. McDougall for the city, and Frank W. Morse for the company.

This agreement, literally, did not come into effect, but the spirit of it is being carried out in the present deal.

By that agreement the company was to bring its line in from the east via Clover Bar, cross the city from east to west and debouch into the farming country again to the west of the Ingwood estate. In consideration of so doing the city was to give the company a bonus of $100,000 for the purchase of yards for shops and terminals. This bonus was voted on by the ratepayers at that time and passed by an overwhelming majority.

Of the subsequent circumstances surrounding this agreement, of how the Canadian Northern was built over practically the same route that the G. T. P. had intended to use, of how the construction of that road so changed the whole face of affairs and of how the inception of transportation facilities so enhanced the value of real estate in what is known as the east end that the right of way which the city proposed giving to the Grand Trunk and on which the city had options for what now appear to be trifling sums, soared and soared until what might have been had for a few thousands could not have been bought for half a million, and of how the city found itself unable to acquire this property without forever pledging the credit of the municipality—all these are facts well known to Edmontonians.

Then came the long, long fight over the Clover Bar crossing. Edmontonia people naturally did not want the Grand Trunk to come in over the high level bridge. For many months the question was hanging in the balance, so to speak, and "Clover Bar" or "high level" was the topic of many an argument and debate in this city and in Strathcona.

That Edmonton had the right end of the case was steadily contended. From an engineering point of view Edmonton held that there was no gaining that this city lay in direct line for the shorter route, that the river could be crossed for less than half the money at Clover Bar than at Ninth avenue and that the best gradients were to be found by following the direct route.

That the company fully recognized this was apparent many months ago. As long ago as January the Bulletin published the first authentic news indicating the company's intentions when it brought out the story of the purchase of the Otwell property for right of way and bridge approaches at Clover Bar, and when a couple of weeks later it told the story of a similar purchase on the west side of the river.

WHAT THE COMPANY BOUGHT
In order to give a clear idea of what the Grand Trunk Pacific has acquired, a detailed description of the property is necessary.

The company has purchased in all 640 acres of land, consisting of the northwest quarter of section 16, the northeast quarter of 17, the northwest quarter of 18, making a strip half a mile wide and two miles long.

It is an ideal property for railway lands, situated on high, dry

C.P.R. RUSHING CONSTRUCTION

Great Corporation Pushing Construction Work on New Western Line

Work on all the new branches of the C.P.R. throughout the west is being pushed forward as rapidly as possible. No less than nineteen new lines are being constructed and by the end of the year hundreds of miles of new road will be ready for operation and thousands of acres of fertile soil will be ready for settlement, says the Winnipeg Telegram.

Reports received by the C.P.R. officials this week show that altogether some 950 teams with double that number of men are at work. At Wetsaskiwin there are 242 teams and 294 men at work and on the main line which is being built from Winnipeg to Edmonton. One hundred miles of the road from Wetsaskiwin will be completed by the end of the week. At the eastern end of the road, which is now at Strassburg, construction is being pushed ahead. Here there are eighty-six teams and one hundred men at work. At Saskatoon work is going on on the same line in both directions, and the shining steel which will bind Edmonton and Winnipeg together is being laid as rapidly as possible. On the western section from Saskatoon, 137 teams and 180 men are at work, while there are as many at work on the eastern section.

Another section upon which work is being rushed is at Medicine Hat, where the grade reduction of the main line is in progress. Here there are 197 teams and 500 men employed. On the South on to Weyburn line, 34 teams and 125 men are at work. On the Kootenay Central branch there are thirty-six teams and 121 men employed, and on the Laurier to Broome Hill line there are 18 teams and 100 men at work. The extension from Wolsley to Estevan is progressing rapidly. On this line 81 teams and eighteen men are employed. On the new line running north from Teulon eleven teams are at work; and on the extension west from Shebo 32 teams and 43 men.

TWO HUNDRED HORSES HERE

Races Commencing Monday Will Be Greatest in The History Of Alberta. Stables all Crowded

Two hundred horses for the Edmonton fair.

That is the number of horses that there will be on the grounds, in the paddocks and in the stables, when the first flag falls on Monday afternoon.

Already the stables are crowded. At four o'clock yesterday afternoon there were 127 horses in the stables and the grounds and many were yet to be heard from.

There never was a meeting in the history of the west when as many or as good horses were gathered together at one meet and there never was a better chance for fast time and exciting finishes as there is for this year's races.

The track is in excellent condition. Yesterday's rain did not do much harm. The probabilities of today which say that the weather for Sunday and Monday is to be fine and warmer is a guarantee that the weather man is filling his part of the program by sending king's weather. With the dust well laid and the track nicely dried from the rain, the horses will get in one, two, three and four and it would not be surprising to see the track record not only of Edmonton but of all the west set by several seconds.

Among the horses present there is Chestnut—which can certainly clip 10 seconds off the fastest time heretofore. The track record is now 2:19 and 500 is offered to the horse which will get under 2:17 for two heats. Chestnut has a mark of 7:14 and only last week stepped five heats, every one of which was under 19.

To take a census of all the horses assembled and give the mark and record of each would take more space than the Dominion stock book, but there are a few of the big strings that are worth watching. Ice Chappell of Brandon, has ten horses, and the big barn and there are at least three of them that will come very close to the fastest time ever made here heretofore. Dease March makes it in 2:20 2:14; Samuel T. in 2:20, flat and Samuel L. in 2:19 1-4. Then he has Ena H. Harry V. Lexington Jr., Mac E. and Doctor Joe, all harness horses which can get up and dust, besides a little Montana horse Queen of the Bus, which can be counted on to get inside the money.

While Chappell has the longest string of trotters an dpcers, Moodie of Calgary, has the longest string of gallopers. Moodie has five of them along and he said yesterday that he would have a pony for every race. His horses are Sandy Andy, Lady Huron, Keichum, Burdette, and Demas, and he is also looking after Chestnut, which Dr. Bell is driving.

There are so many other gallopers that an enumeration of them would look like a census of the racing stables of the west. Among them are Cotton's Whistling Rufus from Medicine Hat, "Blackie" Holbrook's daughter from Calgary, Davey's 222a from Calgary, which will undoubtedly be a favorite on the books, Billy Howard's Springsten from Cochrane and another colt which is counted a dark horse not only in color but in possibilities. Then there is Jack Carlson from New Westminster, with Cloud and a two year old unnamed and unknown and Andy Robertson from Brandon with Striker-Light and Rosalie. Scott Winters, of Lacombe, is due to be here to-night with Mary L., Time Table and Lady Turner, and Charlie Macabe, known on every track from Lake Superior to Los Angeles, is here with three thirty little creatures. Macabe has a habit

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC BRANCH LINES BILL

Third Reading at Ottawa of Act Which Empowers Company to Build 24 Spur Lines in the Northwest

Ottawa, June 29.—The Grand Trunk Pacific Branch Lines Bill came up again to-day for a third reading in the Commons. Lancaster moved the six months' adjournment. He said that the company ought to be placed in the position as the Grand Trunk Pacific Co. in regard to its liability to the country. Dr. Sproule said the bill was far too wide. It was practically a proposal to grant a charter for between four and five thousand miles of railway for twenty-three different lines. The charter was almost a blank one, as it was not stated within 120 miles where the roads were to start from. He believed that the branch lines company was organized to enable the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Grand Trunk Railway to avoid the liabilities imposed on them.

Mr. Turriff, of East Assiniboia, argued that the opposition were trying in every way to prevent the Grand Trunk Pacific from building lines until the C.P.R. could get in, Lancaster said the Opposition wanted the Grand Trunk Pacific to build lines and their whole objection was that the Grand Trunk Pacific did not want to do it. The Lancaster motion was lost. Henderson, of Halifax, said it looked as if Mr. Turriff thought he owned the entire Northwest. He wanted to refer the bill back to committee to strike out the clause for a branch line from Regina southeast. This line would lie between the Arcola line and the Soo line of the C.P.R. These two lines were only twenty-four miles apart and a branch line would thus be at most only twelve miles away from one or other. He proposed instead of this line that a line should be built south of the main line of the C. P. R. and west from Moose Jaw to the southern boundary of the province of Saskatchewan. Mr. Sproule took Turriff to task for having gone out of his way to accuse the Opposition of opposing the G. T. P. when in reality their only object was to insure that roads would all be built by the Grand Trunk Pacific.

of winning races right along when he is expected to finish in the rush, and anything that he enters is worth watching, especially his Golden Plume, which will probably start in the mile and one-eighth.

Joe Carson with his famous Red King and Adams of Chicago with Joe Interest, are both still in Calgary and it is expected that they will be at Monday evening, and that with Chestnut, would make a free-for-all that would give the fanatics some generations.

There is one feature of the program which may be subjected to a slight amendment. As it stands they are a little short on running races and as there are something like 60 good gallopers here already a few extra will probably be run in to give the boys a chance to make a dollar and the public a chance to see plenty of races.

land, every acre available for railway purposes and not cut up by any creeks or other topographical inconveniences.

It is situated just three miles from Jasper avenue, due north and lies one half a mile from the present city limits. One quarter lies to the east of First street and three quarters to the west. The most easterly quarter, known as the McKay quarter, lies directly north of the Norwood estate and First street is its western boundary. The next quarter to the west is known as the Graydon place and 120 acres of it belonged to Alderman "Sam" Smith and his partner, Mr. Helliwell, the remaining 40 acres belonging to Mr. Belcher, who is now down at Victoria, on the Saskatchewan.

The third quarter is the McEachern property. Of this Messrs. Smith and Helliwell held 40 acres, making 160 acres which they owned jointly and the 120 belonging to Neil McEachern, who is now in Owen Sound, Ontario, the negotiations having been carried out by power of attorney through his brother, John McEachern, of this city. The fourth and last quarter to the west is the McPherson farm, which belongs in toto to Mr. McPherson, who is occupying and farming the land at the present time.

THE PRICE PAID.

The price paid for all the property was the same, $332.50 an acre.

HISTORY OF THE DEAL.

Literally speaking, the deal for the four quarters dates from the 1st of June, as it was on that day that Mr. Reilly, land commissioner for the Grand Trunk Pacific, commenced negotiations for the purchase of the property. After consulting with the company's solicitors, Mr. Reilly connected with the Western Realty Co. and all the business was done through them. By the 3rd of June options had been secured on all except the McKay property. Mr. McKay at the time was down at Beaver Lake and on the afternoon of the 5th Mr. Smith made a hurried trip down there and secured an option on his property also. The original payments on these options were $500 for each quarter, or $2,000 in all, and they were all for 15 days, expiring on the 21st. By some misunderstanding, or through some clumsiness, such -- is sometimes seen on the part of large corporations, the options were not taken up on the 21st and this put it up to the Western Realty Co. If they made a further payment without authorization and the company decided that it did not want the property, Mr. Smith and his partner would be the money out. If on the other hand, however, the company wanted the property and their failure to take it up was an oversight. They were in a quandry, but again Mr. Edmonton spirit came to the fore when a couple of men high up in the electric offices, stepped into the breach and offered to risk a third each of the payments on the understanding that the payment would be a dead loss if the company did not take it up.

The payment was made and the property secured for a ten days' extension. Then the wires were kept hot for a few days, but it was not until yesterday immediately before the matter was definitely settled.

The consummation of the deal came in the way of a telegram from Land Commissioner Reilly, stating that he was leaving for Edmonton and asking the Western Realty Co. to notify the owners to have their papers ready to effect a transfer. The papers are now prepared and await only Mr. Reilly's arrival for the change of proprietorship to be consummated by which the Grand Trunk Pacific acquires freight yards, shop sites and terminals in what is destined to be the greatest metropolis of the great west--Edmonton.

There is now only one guess left for the people of Edmonton: Where will the passenger station be located?

Orangeville Men Wanted to Answer Serious Charge

Warrants Out for Walter Jackson, Laundrymen, and Arthur Douglas, Druggist, Who Have Disappeared

Orangeville, Ont., June 29.—On a charge of attempting to procure an abortion, leading to the death of a woman, warrants have been issued for the arrest of Walter Jackson, of the firm of Jackson & Wells, Orangeville, and Arthur Douglas, druggist. Both men have disappeared. Miss Elizabeth Wells, aged 39, who was a junior partner in Jackson & Wells Laundry company, is dead. She was taken violently ill at the laundry office on Friday and removed to her home, where Dr. Carson was called. He found her suffering from a severe attack of dysentery, superinduced by powerful tablets she had taken, so it is stated, at the instance of Jackson, to relieve her condition, which he later acknowledged responsibility for. Miss Wells is said to have told the facts to the physician and then lapsed into unconsciousness, expiring two hours later.

CANONICAL DEBATE IN WINNIPEG.

Winnipeg, June 29.—The question of whether the diocese of Rupert's Land should retain its position as the metropolitan see of the west or should share up the right to appoint the archbishop with other dioceses of Western Canada, received heated discussion at the meeting of the synod today. Part of the session at which the question was threshed out was held in camera, but it is said that the consensus of opinion is in favor of retaining the birthright of the diocese. The proposition is to make the archbishopric of the country a traveling appointment that will for one appointment go to one and again to another. Taking as argument the fact that from a civil and ecclesiastical point of view Winnipeg is the church metropolis of the west, the majority of the members of the synod are in favor of holding the archbishopric. Canon Murray, in a brilliant address, maintained this argument.

DR. TORRINGTON'S ORGAN RECITAL

In spite of inclement weather McDougall church was well filled last evening when Dr. Torrington, organist for thirty-three years of the Metropolitan church, Toronto, and one of the most skilled organists in Canada, gave an organ recital, assisted by Mrs. Dilworth, soprano soloist of Central Methodist church, Toronto. Fortunately, indeed, were the music loving people of Edmonton in having this opportunity of listening to the great master. The recital was a musical festival of great excellence.

The opening number played by Dr. Torrington was Guilmant's Grand Choeur. The number is especially strong in pedal effects. The offertory, St. Cecilia, Batiste, was a brilliant piece of organ playing. Mrs. Dilworth sang O Divine Redeemer with great emotional feeling. Mrs. Dilworth has a pure soprano voice of exquisite quality and an almost perfect production; her solo, Haydn's, was a delightful number, and for an encore she sang Annie Laurie with great feeling and intensity. In the Dead March in Saul Dr. Torrington produced a wonderful drum effect with the pedals. The Pastoral Symphony and the Hallelujah Chorus from Handel's Messiah, elicited rounds of enthusiastic applause. Schumann's Trauerrie, is a singing melody of exquisite sweetness. Noire Celeste, by Batiste, was much enjoyed. Chopin's March Funebre was magnificently played. Haydn's Austrian Hymn, a grand old hymn, was rendered with great religious intensity. Andantino, in D flat, Lemare, a favorite organ selection, and Gavotte (Thomas), a most dainty and tuneful number, called for encores. The Ave Maria was splendidly rendered, the accompaniment and melody fitting in beautifully. The Overture to Zampa was played by the doctor in place of Therzo Symphonique, and was much enjoyed. Mrs. Dilworth was heard again in Gounod's sweet solo, Sing, Smile, Slumber, which was sung with great grace and feeling. Veintemp's great violin solo, arranged for organ, was played with great sonority. Willy's great offertory in E flat brought a most enjoyable programme to a close.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday evening at six o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. May, corner of Fourth street and McKay avenue, when Miss Harriet Walker was united to Mr. Shirley James Chamberlain. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. McQueen. The bride and groom were Miss Hones, the bridegroom being supported by Mr. D. McKinnon. The drawingroom in which the ceremony was performed, was prettily decorated with wild roses. Miss Vera May played the wedding march. The bride was attired in a becoming gown of a delicate shade of pink tulle, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. The bride's maid's gown was of white organdie. The newly wedded couple will take up their residence on Boyle street, where Mr. Chamberlain has erected a handsome house.

SATURDAY, JUNE 30, 1906.

"DOMINION DAY."

The Dominion of Canada is thirty-nine years old tomorrow and on Monday from the Atlantic to the Pacific Canadians will suspend their ordinary occupations and give themselves up to the celebration of the nation's birthday, for it was as the Dominion of Canada that the northern half of the American continent became a nation. Previous to confederation the British possessions in North America were scattered colonies with no relationship save common allegiance to the British crown; little conception of common interests and no means of promoting such had they been recognized. Confederation established a sense of vital relationship between the colonies, encouraged the recognition of their common interests and provided the organization for realizing their common destiny.

The Act of Confederation was of less importance in what it accomplished than in what it suggested; in what it performed than in what it permitted; in the privileges which it conferred and the limitations which it imposed upon the members of the union than in the community of interest which it taught and the opportunities which it indicated. The enactment was of less consequence than the idea which it represented and the trend which it gave to public thought. The basic idea of confederation was nationhood and by providing the means for making a nation it inspired Canadians to become a nation.

The vista thus opened to the citizens of united Canada was one infinitely broader than that of the residents of the colony of Nova Scotia or British Columbia. They ceased to be Colonials and became Canadians. They learned to think less as residents of a province or locality than as citizens of a country, a country broad enough and rich enough to be made great. The influence of this habit of thought stands out from the pages of Canadian history as the real secret of our rapid national advancement. Nations are made great by the vigor of public sentiment and the breadth of public thought. Countries of small area and poor resources have become prosperous and famous because they were inhabited by people who believed them great and who carried their convictions into service. No country was ever prosperous or famous whose people had not strong faith in both their country and themselves. If Canada has achieved any place of distinction in the eyes of the world it has been because her people have thought as Canadians for the welfare of Canada.

THE TRUNK SEWER.

The city council has decided upon the plans for the new trunk sewer and the work will be proceeded with at once. The decision is not before time and the construction should be carried on with all reasonable dispatch in order to overcome as far as possible the consequences of the initial delay.

But rapid construction is not hasty construction and anxiety to complete the undertaking at the earliest possible moment should not be allowed to interfere with the quality of the work. The early completion of the sewer is a matter of great importance, but not of such great importance as its proper construction. The cost of the undertaking will be large but its expense will be really measured by the proper or improper manner of construction. If properly constructed the sewer will really be cheap; if improperly constructed it will be doubly dear.

Two plans were before the council. Having selected what appeared the better the council should see that this plan is carried out to the letter and should clothe the officials in charge with all necessary authority to enforce such requirement. If the work is done by contract the specifications should include a clause that the work must be at all times subject to thorough inspection by the city engineer or the public works commissioner, or both. If the work is undertaken by the city either the commissioner or the engineer should be put in direct charge and given all necessary power to work out on scientific lines the general plans which the council have adopted. In either event the responsibility for the construction should be specifically delegated to one or other official, that official should be guaranteed against interference in discharging his duty and should be heartily backed up while faithfully performing it.

SUNDAY CARS NEXT WEEK

This city clerk will make his official declaration of the result of the vote next Tuesday, after which the company may legally operate their system on the Sabbath.

Harry Thaw PleadsEmotional Insanity

Attorneys, Unable to Deny That He Killed White, are Going to Claim That He Had Provocation Such as Mented Whites Extinction

New York, June 29.—With the decision of his attorneys that Harry Thaw's defence shall be emotional insanity, work was begun in earnest today. The defence will try to prove that Thaw was so worked up by brooding over the wrong he believed White did his wife that he was not responsible for his act. The defence of emotional insanity opens a wide field for investigation. Under this lead the defence will be able to bring out all the facts leading up to the murder. It will show all the acts of White's life with which Thaw was familiar as bearing on the case. The theory is that the knowledge wrought upon Thaw so as to bring on a fit of insanity in which he slew his enemy. The lawyers must work quickly as it is not known how soon the case may be called for trial. The detectives are already busy running down stories. On the other hand the work of the prosecution is easy. The killing of White by Thaw cannot be denied. There is plenty of evidence of premeditation, whether in so reasoning he was a sane man, bent on ridding himself of an enemy at any cost, or that he was of an illogical and diseased brain. On the mere showing of facts, unless the defence can show justification, the verdict of guilty must follow. Thaw's attorneys and friends believe the defence of emotional insanity is sufficient to cause acquittal. They believe the end will be the rendering of a popular verdict that punishment has already fallen where it was merited; that real crime has been avenged and that the avenger violated no law which should call down on himself the slightest penalty. The full story of the causes for the murder are bound to be dramatic in the extreme and replete with sensations.

SUNDAY BILL REPORTED.

Ottawa, June 29.—An important development in framing the Lord's Day Act took place this evening, when Aylesworth accepted an amendment granting power to provinces to enact further legislation with regard to Sunday observance. Aylesworth said the provinces have co-ordinate jurisdiction with the Dominion Parliament to pass Sunday observance legislation within certain limits. In order to receive the moral support and active sympathy for the Lord's Day Act concessions would have to be made to some people of the Dominion. He was inclined to be generous in this respect without doing violence to the principle of the bill. Owing to this, Aylesworth said he would accept the amendment. Mr. Monk expressed the opinion that the amendment did not go far enough. It gave the provincial legislatures nothing that they have not at present.

The clause respecting the publication of newspapers was amended so that work can be commenced at six o'clock on Sunday evening instead of eight o'clock for Monday morning's paper. The clause in regard to giving 24 hours rest to those who worked on Sunday was confined to industrial processes and transportation companies. Grimby Park, was ruled out for having religious services on Sunday because a fee was charged. The Act came into force in March, 1937. The bill was reported from committee.

PROMPT SETTLEMENT.

Stealing Relief Storesin San Francisco

Two Men Caught in the Act of Purloining Army Blankets From the Red Cross Stock

San Francisco, June 29.—The first case of serious theft in connection with the relief work came to light yesterday when John Clark, superintendent of the Red Cross relief station at Golden Gate park, was arrested, charged with stealing blankets. George Bryant, engineer of the children's play ground was also arrested. There is a specific charge against the men of theft of 400 pairs of army blankets, which they sold at $1.20 per pair. The police say Clark made a contract to deliver 500 pairs of blankets weekly at $1.20 per pair. They were to be taken from the Red Cross supply on Clark's requisition. Officers laid a trap, and when the first 420 were delivered they seized them as evidence against Clark and Bryant, who were arrested. The police are looking for other frauds which it is believed are existing.

WALES SHAKEN UP.

Cardiff, Wales, June 28.—Violent earthquake shocks were experienced throughout South Wales at 9.45 yesterday morning. Houses rocked, and a number of the chaper ones were damaged. Hundreds of chimneys fell, pictures were shaken from the walls and destroyed. Occupants of dwellings were thrown to the ground and people fled from their houses, shrieking in panic, with visions of the San Francisco disaster before them. Though there were many narrow escapes from falling chimneys and copings, there were no casualties so far as is known. Shocks were also felt at Bristol, Ilfracombe and elsewhere. They were accompanied by loud rumblings.

 1841. They pointed to the fact that the province of Quebec had submitted for many years to inequalities precisely similar to those of which the Ontario people complained, and they also felt, and without reason, that they nationality and the privileges that had been solemnly guaranteed to them might be considerably endangered if representation by population became the order of the day.
 "As I have said, all men who paid any attention to public affairs saw that that kind of thing could not last. Under the conditions that I have depicted a stable government was absolutely impossible, every Ministry was at the mercy of any two or three knaves or faddists who happened for the time being to support them. Useful legislation had become perfectly impossible, and I do not believe the veriest Democrat in Canada, had he been on the floor of Parliament, would not have said that even an autocracy would have been preferable to the chaos that was then subsisting. I remember perfectly well that many of the oldest, the best and wisest of our public men were at that time almost in despair. Many of them expressed their opinion to me quite frankly that under such a state of affairs the dissolution of the union was absolutely inevitable. Under the conditions I have pointed out it was perfectly clear—and I believe there is no sort of doubt it would have happened—that the dissolution of the union would have been very shortly succeeded by the absorption of Ontario and Quebec in the United States.
 "I recollect perfectly well that, when I was explaining to my constituents the terms of Confederation, and the various reasons that had brought it about, my people accepted my explanations in a very excellent spirit and appeared perfectly disposed to give me a free hand in all points but one, and that point on which they struck was the Governor-General's salary. The proposal to raise the salary of the Governor-General of Canada from £7,000 to £10,000 was not made until after the Confederation, and I was necked remorselessly for supporting it. Rural economists objected more decidedly to this proposal. They could not be made to understand, as they put it, 'how it could cost any feller $150 a day to board himself and his family.' I can assure you that that was very serious on the result of the elections. I refused point blank to pledge myself to vote for a reduction of his Excellency's salary and it cost me many hundreds of votes and very nearly lost my election. Nor was that the feeling of my constituents alone, for it is a matter of history, and a very curious little item it is, that the first resolution of the confederated Dominion was passed, demanding an amendment of the B. N. A. Act with regard to the salary of the Governor-General, passed in spite of the Government of the day, strong as it was, calling for a reduction of the salary of the Governor-General.
 "Elections, even to-day, with a great many modern improvements, are rather troublesome and expensive, but they are not a circumstance that has ever won the first entered Parliament. In those days elections, instead of being conducted in one day, were spread over several weeks, with results which I will not stop to particularize. Besides this, first of all, we had nomination day, on which, by an unwritten law, the candidate of the party of any election was expected to entertain his own supporters, and do it well. This was followed by two days of open polling. Then we had the day of the poll to each township, which caused a great deal of trouble and expense in bringing in voters from distant quarters of the township to the poll. Furthermore, we had on top of that, declaration day, when all parties, friends and foes, combined to have a festival at the expense of the for- cause may be brief, but the fact was that in those days, having reference to the relative wealth of the country then and now, I should say that an election was three or four times more expensive than it is to-day, and it is expensive enough now. Then, if anybody wanted to appeal against any little irregularities that had taken place on nomination day, or on polling day, or on declaration day, he had the privilege of going before Parliament, which would select five men, two on each side, with a chairman chosen by ballot, who would hear the evidence, and, if they got through, hearing evidence in three years, they would perhaps give him a decision in the fourth, by which time parliament would dissolve.
 "A story that Sir Mackenzie Bowell, the ex-Premier, tells of the views he held on the subject of Confederation affords an apt illustration of the implicit confidence that he reposed in his party leader, Sir John A. Macdonald. "I was serving on the American frontier," said Sir Mackenzie, "at the time that the union of Canada, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick was decided upon. Mr. Reid, who represented a constituency in parliament at that time, wrote asking me what stand he ought to take on this question when it came up for settlement. I answered that there was one man he was absolutely safe in following and that was Sir John A. Macdonald. I may add that he made no mistake. He took my advice.
 "I had myself been an unsuccessful candidate in North Hastings at the election of 1865 for the Canadian Assembly, but in the general election that followed in 1867 I was returned for this same constituency, which I had the honor of representing continuously in the House of Commons from Confederation down till 1892, when I entered the Senate.
 "What was the issue? Sir Mackenzie was asked, "upon which you were fought in North Hastings was fought at the time of Confederation?"
 "Why, the chief issue that I had to face in my constituency," answered the ex-Premier, "was nothing more or less than the school question that we have had before us in one shape and another on more than one occasion since. In a word, it was an agitation for the abolition of separate schools, which recurred finally in the minority getting more than they had in the first place."
 "Then, W. R. Scott, the secretary of State, has played a more or less prominent part in the public life of Canada for half a century. In 1857 he was returned for Ottawa for the Legislative Assembly of Canada, and remained well that sturdy champion of popular rights, William Lyon Mackenzie, with whom he sat for a time in the Provincial Legislature. Phipps also he heard and knew, and can still recall instances of the marvelous force that the great French-Canadian Liberal ex-

Has Little Fear of a Dimension

Eastern Commercial Paper Has Little Faith in Mr. Whyte's Apprehensions

The Monetary Times, representative of the business interests in the east, has little faith in the mysterious statement made in an interview in Montreal, by the second vice-president of the C. P. R. Mr. Whyte is scarcely fair to himself. His Winnipeg friends, who are continually beseeching kindly fate to multiply railroads, will say that a trip to Montreal always tends to dwindle the westerner; and that the C. P. R. should be too big to play in ever so modified degree, by establishing interests which did not see that the way to make traffic for every railroad in the east, was to build new lines in the west. The west has made up its mind that it cannot have too many ways of getting its crop out of the country. The west has had many wheat blockades already. The increase in production will be persistent for many years to come. Premier Scott, of Saskatchewan, and Premier Rutherford, of Alberta, are just as anxious as they can be to enlarge the railroad services of their provinces. That the west in its ideas and ways of doing things approximates more to the American than to the more conservative business element in Eastern Canada is true.

The influx of scores of farmers from the northwestern States is bound to have a strong effect on social growths and political tendencies, as well as upon the every day methods of husbandry. But the American immigrant is a contented being. He is not a fanatical devotee of the stars and stripes. He knows a better form of government when he sees it. There is no more reason why he should refuse to become a Canadian than there was against Canadians becoming Americans. A country that is good enough to get rich in should be good enough to swear allegiance to. A fourth of July celebration is not regarded as an offence against international morals in London. We can hear the declaration of independence read with amusement as well as admiration—amusement that slave owners should declare that all men are born equal, and admiration at the assertion, even unto blood, of the honest doctrine, that to take a man's money from him without giving him a chance to say how it shall be spent, is tyrannical, as well as foolish. The American in Western Canada is too busy growing wheat to spend his time plotting against the crown. His neighbor is like unto him. Prosperity is the greatest political acclimatizer known to mankind. The flourishing farmer will stand by the influence of his affluence. He will not be particular about the name of the railroad so long as the rates are right.

There is, of course, something in Mr. Whyte's apprehension that the Hill lines will divert traffic in the Minneapolis direction. Complaint has already been made that the Grand Trunk Pacific intends to use the Wisconsin Central, to connect with Eastern Canada via Chicago, pending the construction of the government portions of their transcontinental system. But it is impossible to rely upon the native force of purely Canadian interests. The 'national policy' can be made to apply to the diversion of freight. The channels of export and import are not absolutely uncontrollable. Mr. Hill is building railroads in Canada because there is money in the enterprise. He has proved that comparatively little territory is necessary to the support of a well found, well run steel road. It may be that the Canadian minister of railways obtained from him the formula that six miles of farming land on either side of a railway is enough for dividend earning purposes. That such a statement should have been made in the House of Commons without contradiction, is sure proof of the complete revolution in railroading, which is one of the best grounds for really believing that we have got a mortgage on the twentieth century. The Americans will never take it from us.

Two Continents Linked by Cable

American Cable now Complete from Frisco to Tokio

Washington, D.C., June 27.—The following message was exchanged between President Roosevelt, and the Mikado, "His Majesty, the Emperor of Japan, Tokio."

"I am glad to send to your Majesty, over the American cable, which has just been completed between Guam and Japan and thus uniting our two countries across the Pacific, a message of sincere goodwill and assurance of the best wishes of the government and people of the United States for the welfare and prosperity of your Majesty's empire. (Signed) Theodore Roosevelt."

"Tokio, June 26.—The President, Washington.—I have just received with great interest and appreciation the kind message sent by you over the cable which has recently been laid between Guam and Japan, and which will shortly be open to the public. I am sincerely gratified to know the first telegram by this new line, which unites our two countries, should convey to me the assurances of the friendly sentiments of the government and people of the United States for myself and my people, and I most cordially reciprocate your expression of good will and good wishes. (Signed) Mikado."

The Tokio and Guam offices of the Commercial Pacific Cable company are in communication by the new cable. Messages between the President of the United States and the Emperor of Japan have been exchanged. The bridging of the Pacific and the encircling of the coast of Eastern Asia by an American cable is thus completed.

No American interference has appealed so powerfully as this to the statesmen and merchants of Japan, and every stage of its progress has been watched by them with an intensity of interest of which our people have but a faint conception. The original offer to construct a cable from San Francisco to Manila without government aid or subsidy was made by Mr. John W. McKay to the Hon. John Hay, Secretary of State, on August 22, 1901. It was a plain proposition, made by a man of undoubted responsibility, and of long experience with submarine cables to do that which no other private person had ever offered to do, and which the government itself was unwilling to do. It had, nevertheless, to encounter opposition, which was finally silenced. Undeterred, however, by possible legislative obstacles, the Commercial Pacific Cable company ordered the construction of the cable, and on the very day on which the bill was killed which proposed to commit the government of the United States to the work of laying a cable across the Pacific ocean, it was announced that 1,665 nautical miles of the cable which was to be laid between San Francisco and Honolulu had been manufactured, and that the work of making the cable was proceeding at the rate of 26 miles per day. By the end of June 1901, the last section of the cable to Manila was landed at Honolulu, and the last ten thousand miles was successfully completed. That is to say, within eighteen months after the signing of this contract, an enterprise was executed which has no parallel in the history of ocean telegraphy. The route followed is unique for its lack of natural obstacles and not only traverses the greatest uninhabited waste waters of the globe, but has to deal with ocean depths much greater than any previously encountered. The message which was sent on July 4th, 1903, by President Roosevelt around the world, by the completed line of the Commercial Pacific Cable company and its connecting lines, between Europe and Asia, went by the Postal Telegraph company land lines from Oyster Bay to San Francisco, then by the Commercial cable line to Honolulu, Midway, Guam and Manila. From Manila to Hong Kong the message passed by the cable which was laid every cut in 1893, from Hong Kong it went to Saigon, to Peking, to Madras, to Aden, to Suez, to Alexandria, to Malta, to Gibraltar, to Lisbon, to the Azores, an advance to Oyster Bay. Between Hong Kong and the Azores, the transit was by foreign cables, and the shortening of the trans-Pacific communication, both in respect of the interruptions, and of actual distance, may be inferred from the devious course which had to be taken by the President's message in its homeward course from Eastern Asia.

After communication with Manila was established, there remained the task of extending the all-American Pacific cable to China. This was completed by April 17th of the present year, and it has been promptly supplemented by the extension of the cable to Japan.

Thus, in less than five years since the first communication of Mr. John McKay to the secretary of state, the greatest single ocean cable enterprise in the world has been brought to a successful termination.
